Abstract

A device for adjusting seat components (100 through 104) as a function of a signal from a video sensor system is provided. Furthermore, a safety belt is adjusted as well as a function of the signal. This adjustment is carried out as a function of the occupant class, the occupant volume, the occupant pose, and the head position. (Figure 1)

5